 Role: Principal Investigator

Claneil Foundation, Philadelphia, PA, Chilton (PI) Total Cost: $1,200,000 06/04-06/07
The Philadelphia GROW Project / Children's Sentinel Nutrition Assessment Program (C-SNAP)

See above for description.

Role: Principal Investigator

Drexel University, Perez (PI) Total Cost: $187,000 01/06-01/08
An Evaluation of the Combined Effects of Environmental Particulate Exposures and Dietary Deficiencies on Pediatric Asthma Severity in Inner City Philadelphia. This community based study works with low-income families in subsidized housing to assess the relationship between housing conditions, mold/bioaerosol contaminants and nutrition.

Role: Co-Investigator

National Institutes of Health, Chilton, Recipient 06/03-06/07
Loan Repayment Program Recipient, for Health Disparities Research.
Recipient of the loan repayment program for carrying out disparities research related to nutrition and hunger.

Role: Program recipient

Center for Health Equality, Drexel University, Chilton (PI) Total Cost: $30,000 01/03-06/05
Community Solutions to Nutrition Related Health Disparities
This study assessed racial and ethnic disparities in access to nutritious foods that impact health, and identified places where GIS mapping could be included in community-based strategies for eliminating such disparities.

Role: Principal Investigator

Drexel University & MCP Hahnemann University, Chilton (PI) Total Cost: $20,000 07/02-06/03
Improving Child Nutrition in the Emergency Food System
This study sought to identify the immediate points of intervention that directly impact the nutritional intake of single parent African American and Latino households accessing the emergency food system in Philadelphia.

Role: Principal Investigator

Institute of Women's Health, Drexel University, Chilton (PI) Total Cost: $5,000 01/02-01/03
Women's Health, Hunger and Human Rights: Women's nutritional status and decision-making.
Given the gender disparities in the experience of hunger, this study sought to 1) document the nutritional status of African American female food cupboard users, and 2) to explore their experiences with food insecurity, their beliefs about the relationship between nutrition and health, and to explore women's "lay" terminology and understanding of human rights language related to nutrition and health.

Role: Principal Investigator

Curriculum Development

Teaching-case development

Drexel University School of Public Health

- Developed teaching case on youth violence in Philadelphia, incorporated into Full-time curriculum, Health Behavior Assessment.
- Developed and authored a full teaching case on Obesity, Welfare Reform and Human Rights, which was incorporated into the full time MPH curriculum in "Health Behavior Assessment," spring 2002-05..
- Guided graduate students in creating a public health ethics and policy case on stem cell research, which was ultimately taught in "Health Policy," spring 2002-05.
- Developed a teaching case on Cocaine addiction in the US & the drug war in Latin America from a public health ethics and human rights framework for "Introduction to Public Health," taught spring 2002, 03, 04.
- Incorporated human rights components into several existing teaching cases in "Health Policy," "Behavioral Health," and "Program Planning and Evaluation."

Drexel University, College of Medicine

Developed a real-life cultural diversity teaching case on end-of-life care for physicians and nurses through two organizations: ELNEC, with the American Association of Colleges of Nursing and EPEC, Education of Physicians on End of Life Care, supported by the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation. 2001

Penn State College of Medicine

Developed human diversity teaching cases from my ethnographic field research for the four-year diversity training curriculum at Penn State. As a part of the curriculum development, I researched American Indian and Mexican American health beliefs, conducted fieldwork in tribal communities in southwestern Oklahoma and facilitated tribal/community advocacy. 1995-1997

Course Development

Drexel University School of Public Health

Developed the syllabus for the full semester course, Health and Human Rights, the required introductory course for all Drexel SPH doctoral students as part of the doctoral core. Significantly altered the course Health Behavior Assessment, and adapted this course into a hybrid Problem Based Learning (PBL) and Lecture course during the change of our curriculum from PBL to more traditional formats.

Drexel University College of Medicine

Developed the syllabus for a 5-week seminar on Complementary and Alternative Medicine for 2nd and 3rd year Medical Students. Spring 2002
